Survey results update:

Thanks to all the parents and students who participated in our bell schedule consultation for the 2024-2025 school year. Your feedback via the surveys to me regarding late starts, teacher collaboration, and RTI is greatly appreciated. Overall, there is strong parent and student interest supporting student success and teacher collaboration in our schedule. When decisions are made regarding next year's schedule later in the year, we will share that information with families.

Did you know? Denisa is the Restorative Action (RA) facilitator in ATS this year and has already facilitated a number of learning circles with youth in the school! She has also provided several tips and strategies for discussions to start having with your teens which we will share each week.

Weekly Tip #6: Be curious in communication in terms of what your child needs from you. As parents, there can be a quick response to fix a situation or problem. However, sometimes they do not need you to fix their situation or offer advice, but rather to listen to what they have experienced. Youth need to learn how to handle certain situations on their own rather than someone solving it for them. When your child comes to you, ask them what they would like from you? Do they need help, advice, encourage or someone to sit and listen. By asking this question, it opens to lines of communication and allows them to express their needs in the situation.
